Can you believe how fast this year is going? With the upcoming holidays, we thought it would be nice to share some resources to help inform and celebrate a couple of holidays.

Veterans Day is November 11 and even though we have the day off, students need to know it's more than just another day . You can help build a foundation for your students to be proud and contributing citizens of our country. You can begin by letting them know who in your building are veterans. Fun Fact: I served 10 years in the Air National Guard. Did you know we have many veterans in our school system?

   Many resources can be found by exploring Teachers First's Veterans Day Resources and ThoughtCo. Whether it is for a class period,a project, or helpful talking points, these are great sites to get ideas.

Thanksgiving is November 28th and, just like Veteran's Day, we have the day off. Right before Thanksgiving break, as you all know, can be a very chaotic time in the classroom because you may not have a full class, or you may not want to start a new unit before a long break.

There are various places where you can find resources for Thanksgiving related activities, but here is somewhere to start, courtesy of NEA!

NEA Thanksgiving Ideas for K-5

NEA Thanksgiving Ideas for 6-8

NEA Thanksgiving Ideas for 9-12

It's Puzzling! Discovery Education's Puzzlemaker allows both teachers and students the ability to create a variety of puzzles. The puzzles can be inserted into documents or printed from the website.
